

GMD 406: Graphic + Media Design Senior Capstone

Assistant Professor Eleazar Hernandez

8:00-11:30am, Opalka Gallery Lecture Hall

The Graphic + Media Design Senior Capstone is a self-initiated, two-semester research, design, and development experience for students nearing completion of the BFA degree in Graphic + Media Design (GMD). Students begin with a thorough investigation of a design problem by utilizing research methods common throughout the creative industry. Findings are compiled into a written proposal and prepared as a formal presentation. This proposal is the foundation for a body of work that is created throughout both semesters of the Senior Capstone, which includes numerous deliverables that make up the overall design solution. Faculty and fellow students guide the development and progression of each student's project through mentorship, lectures, group critiques, presentations, field trips, and writing assignments.

This event is an open forum that allows visitors to attend any number of the student presentations.

BUS 424-10: Business Strategy II

Assistant Professor Kevin A. Fletcher

8:30-9:45am, KCC 224

Business Strategy II students will be presenting the results of a semester-long online business simulation. Each team of students has made financial, R&D, manufacturing, marketing, human resources, and total quality management decisions for a mock business, in competition with other teams and computer teams. The comprehensive business simulation Capstone project requires student teams to develop specific market strategies, create and finance changes to product characteristics to meet market segment demand, and project a full range of business needs over an 8-year cycle.

EGL 248-12: Dystopias & Utopias (Honors)

Assistant Professor Nathanael Green

8:30-9:30am, KCC 105

Topics in Dystopian and Utopian fiction: students in this honors course pursue their personal interests for a thoughtful examination of past and current utopian stories, ideas, and social functions.

ACC/BUS 327-328 Internship in Business & Accounting

Associate Professor Eileen Brownell

9:45-10:45am, KCC 105

Business Administration and Accounting bachelor degree students will provide a brief overview of their internship experience. Interns will report on their learning objectives and how these objectives were accomplished. Advice for future interns will be part of the discussion. Audience members will have an opportunity to ask interns questions.

PSC 339-10: Current Constitutional Issues

Professor Harvey Strum

9:50-11:20am, KCC 224

Students will present their research as group projects on six issues of constitutional importance within the last ten years.

Service Learning Across Disciplines

Ali Schaeffing, Director of Service Learning

10:00-11:00, KCC 104

Students from a variety of disciplines will join together on a panel to discuss their recent Service Learning experiences. Each student participated in a service project as part of a specific course, and will be reflecting upon service preparation, learning outcomes, and community contributions. The pedagogy of Service Learning will be discussed, with ideas for future campus/community partnerships. Local non-profit partners from this year include The Refugee Welcome Center, Capital Roots, The Sanctuary for Independent Media, and several local food pantries.

Today we celebrate the research achievements of our students. Whether it be in the arts, sciences, business, or social sciences, each presentation is the result of scholarly work now ready to be shared with a community of peers.

The Undergraduate Research Symposium marks the culmination of months of hard work, not only on the part of our students, but also their faculty mentors, the review committee, and others responsible for organizational details behind the scenes. Special thanks go to Dr. Janel Leone, director of the Donnelly Center for Undergraduate Research, for her tireless efforts to encourage and engage students in their research endeavors.
