Jennifer Nissley '10,
Author of The Mythic Koda Rose

"I'd always had this vague idea of wanting to be a writer, but it took years of tinkering and exploration for me to understand what that might mean or look like for me. It can be so intimidating sitting in a room full of talented writers waiting to dissect your story or poem, but thanks to Sage, I never doubted that I deserved to be among them."

Meghan Dillon '18

After graduating from Sage, Meghan was accepted into the prestigious Case Western Reserve University combined Dietetic Internship and M.S. in Public Health Nutrition degree program, which is ranked among the top 10 master's programs of its kind in America.

Taneesha Beebe '16, MD

"Sage was the place where I found my voice and found myself. I started undergrad being extremely shy and reserved and left accomplishing things I couldn't even imagine myself doing. When I got to medical school, I felt like I was prepared for anything and everything."
